The World Green Building Council (WorldGBC) Americas Regional Network is celebrating Earth Day with the release of a new educational video highlighting the work the Green Building Councils (GBCs) of the Americas are doing, and who is involved.

The video notes how the GBCs are connected through North America, Central America, and South America and how all work together towards facilitating the transformation of the building industry towards sustainability.

In addition to showcasing established members (Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Chile, Mexico, Peru, and the United States), the video also highlights emerging members such as Guatemala and Panama. All remain united in the effort to promote sustainable buildings and a better quality of life for people and communities.

Our thanks to the PeruGBC for creating this video and our extended gratitude to the WorldGBC for their leadership to strengthen GBCs in member countries by championing their leadership and connecting them to a network of knowledge, inspiration, and practical support. Happy Earth Day!
