

We, the People, Still Making History

Published on 15 Jun 2012

Written by Heather Blakeslee

Posted in Community

USGBC's Senior Vice President of Conferences and Events, Kimberly Lewis, alongside DVGBC leadership

"We the people of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

It's easy to make a connection between the Preamble to the Constitution and the missions of USGBC and Delaware Valley Green Building Council. Since the beginning of our history, our country has worked toward peaceful, prosperous communities for ourselves and future generations.

Philadelphia hosted our forefathers as they composed the Constitution more than 225 years ago, and in 2013 it will backdrop the Greenbuild International Conference and Expo as USGBC celebrates its 20th anniversary. To prepare the region for this monumental occasion, DVGBC decided to do something that would honor our historic past while looking toward our sustainable future — something that would show a global audience just how hard we're working toward a more prosperous, sustainable region.

The DVGBC 2013 Challenge Pledge allows regional companies, organizations and educational and cultural institutions to make a measurable, sustainability-related pledge that will be fulfilled by Greenbuild 2013.

"We, the people of the Delaware Valley, in order to form a more perfect region and transform our communities into healthier, more prosperous places for people to live, work, and learn, make a pledge to our community."

The program launched April 15, 2012, and by May 1 we had received over 50 pledges. Major real estate developers and hospitality trusts pledged green practices across their portfolios. The Philadelphia Zoo pledged to certify its first LEED building. The City of Philadelphia announced that by 2013, all affordable housing projects would adhere to green building practices. Nonprofit organizations pledged to grow tons of local food and clean hundreds of vacant lots. Companies, schools, and nonprofits alike pledged to educate thousands of students, clients, tradespeople and the public through their programs and art installations. They pledged to plant thousands of trees, install hundreds of acres of green roofs, and reduce thousands of miles traveled in cars. Local manufacturers pledged to make more sustainable products, and designers pledged to use them. Others pledged to push their design limits and achieve net-zero impact.

Collectively, the first 50 pledges alone will result not only in increased environmental quality, but also in an investment of tens of millions of dollars in our regional economy and the creation of thousands of new green jobs.

USGBC anticipates over 30,000 people from all over the world will attend Greenbuild 2013 in Philadelphia. As the host chapter, we want them to know that we, the people, are still making history by envisioning a sustainable future.

0 comments

Leave a comment

Leave a comment

Don't have an account? Create one

You must be signed in to leave a comment.

Email

Password

SIGN IN