Rachel Gutter, director of the Center for Green Schools, was recently featured on Career Day, a popular program from Entertainment Studios. Career Day airs 30 minute episodes, interviewing five people who have “cool, innovative, or out of the box careers.” The program hopes to show students that there are many ways to follow their passion as they grow up.

In her segment, Rachel discusses her ever-changing day-to-day responsibilities as director of the Center, and how she reaches out to both adults and students alike to spread the word about the importance and benefits of green schools.
