

LEED goes on vacation

Published on 15 Jul 2013

Written by Ashley Katz

Posted in LEED

School is out and summer is in full swing, and we want to know—what are your vacation plans?

Now that LEED has a footprint in most beloved vacation destinations, it's easier than ever to make more sustainable travel choices.

According to a recent TripAdvisor[®] survey, nearly two-thirds of travelers reported plans to make more environmentally minded choices over the next year. And while on vacation, 88% of travelers reported turning off lights when not in their hotel room, 78% participated in hotel's linen and towel re-use program, and 58% used recycling in the hotel.

Making memorable vacation plans while leaving a minimal footprint is what the TripAdvisor GreenLeaders Program is all about. The program now has over 1,900 properties in the United States, all available on TripAdvisor.

Are you planning on vacationing green building style? Share your vacation plans in the comments.

Ashley Katz
Director of Corporate Communications & Marketing
U.S. Green Building Council

Member employees, USGBC staff

3 comments

Leave a comment

Tanvi Jaganath
Manager Education and Development, Green Technologies FZCO

1 year 27 weeks ago

Those visiting Sri Lanka / South Asia should certainly try The Kandalama Hotel, (LEED Bronze-2000) - A hotel that doesn't sit on the landscape but is part of it! :) (<http://www.heritagehotels.com/kandalama/>)

Tiffany Coyle
U.S. Green Building Council

1 year 27 weeks ago

I'd love to stay at Bardessono (<http://www.bardessono.com/>) in Yountville, CA. In room massage!

Nicolette Mueller
U.S. Green Building Council

1 year 28 weeks ago

There is a LEED certified hotel in Peru near Machu Picchu that I'd love to visit some day....

Leave a comment

Don't have an account? Create one

You must be signed in to leave a comment.

Email

Password

SIGN IN

